SAFETY

Everyone Goes Home Safe

The key to the success in “Everyone Goes Home Safe” is our staff buying into the safety culture. We are persistent in the evolution of obtaining the highest safety standards through our never-ending quest for knowledge. Our Safety Manager has a passion for safety which stems from his core, and spreads this same energy throughout our company. He has successfully incorporated our corporate motto “Everyone Goes Home Safe”, and holds each employee to that standard.

Ensuring Employee Safety

The L.D. Docsa Safety Program consists of three parts. The safety manual acts as the first part in implementing the policies and procedures of our program, and includes the guidelines, appropriate documentation, practices and procedures. The manual relays the expectations set forth by the Safety Committee. The second part of the process is the training and certifications of our site superintendents and employees. All superintendents are required to complete the 30-hour OSHA program, and are current in First-Aid/CPR training, enabling them to be at the forefront of keeping our employees safe. In addition, L.D. Docsa provides 10-hour OSHA training for all field employees. A main point in our program requires our superintendents to complete daily tool-box talks on site. These talks elaborate on key safety items that will be encountered in the work being performed. The third part of our program incorporates our Safety Manager. The Safety Manager is responsible for reviewing the daily and weekly safety reports submitted by our on-site Superintendents, in addition to weekly job-site inspections. Every aspect of the program is completed as a team effort between all parties, including L.D. Docsa management.

“Everyone Goes Home Safe” - It’s not just a motto, it’s our way of doing business.
